

St Marys, Isles of Scilly Runway Extension

When St Mary's underwent a runway extension, the knock-on effect was they now required a full upgrade of airfield services.

Working closely with Lagan Construction Group, this project required importation of all materials. Although the Isles of Scilly are located just off the coast of Cornwall, they are remote enough to necessitate thorough forward planning as any missing parts would have to be located and flown in separately. When time is of the essence, this is obviously not an option!
